PhD - Enterprise Scholarship

Connecting with talented new researchers by supporting a PhD Enterprise Scholarship

The Flinders Medical Centre Volunteers service is proud to announce the establishment of a PhD Enterprise Scholarship that would be jointly funded by the Flinders Medical Centre Volunteers service, the Department of Education, Skills and Employment with an internship at Southern Adelaide Local Health Network (SALHN).

This scholarship scheme will support co-funded scholarships for industry-related PhD research projects. The agreed industry internship can then be undertaken by the student at any point during their course. Industry internships must be related to a research doctorate student's area of research, be at least three months long, and consist of 60 full-time equivalent days of engagement with SALHN.

Flinders Medical Centre Volunteers Service support co-funding a scholarship where a candidate had a nursing and/or community health focus.

Professor Andrew Bersten, Network Clinical Director, Medicine and Executive Director, Research Strategy invites students to register their interest and following a review of the candidates, one student and one internship supervisor were recommended to be put forward by SALHN and FUSA:

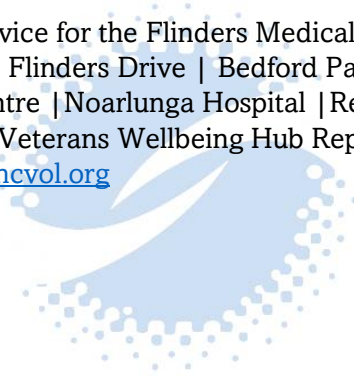

The above candidate could be designated the role of 'Volunteer Service for the Flinders Medical Centre Inc. PhD Candidate' and would agree to presenting twice a year to the FMC Volunteers; at the AGM and one other public event (i.e., SALHN Research Week or Volunteer seminar at FMC).
