Greater than low risk submissions must be made through the SA Health Research GEMS system. Submissions must be complete and submitted by the final submission date to make the next available meeting. Investigators are encouraged to submit the application at least a couple of days prior to the final submission date.

Phase 0/1/1b clinical trials will need to be submitted at least 2 weeks before the final submission deadline to allow SALHN Drug and Therapeutic Committee review prior to SAC HREC review. They also require a completed Site-Specific Assessment submission to facilitate concurrent governance review in order to comply with the SALHN phase 1 clinical trial pathway.

There may be rare scenarios where completed applications submitted by the final submission date are not assigned to the next meeting. In these circumstances the applicant will be provided an explanation and the study will be assigned to the next available meeting.

There may also be scenarios where applications are accepted after the final submission date. These will be made on a case-by-case basis at the discretion of the SAC HREC.
